Whether unsatisfied or not with them, you can always choose to install other apps through this dedicated software solution. The smart phone's software is kept up-to-date, and you will be sure not to skip tasks thanks to the organizer sync option, compatible with Microsoft Outlook, IBM, Lotus Notes, and Yahoo. Research In Motion (RIM) recently announced that it will finally release Macintosh-compatible desktop management software for BlackBerry handhelds this fall. I was lucky enough to get a quick hands-on demonstration this morning from RIM Product Manager Andrey Feldman at an event in New York City, and I dug up a few previously unannounced tidbits about RIM's upcoming software release for Apple computer users with BlackBerrys. BlackBerry Desktop Software Add/Remove Apps on Mac First of all, the Mac-version of BlackBerry Desktop Manager, or BlackBerry Desktop Software, its official name, will not ship along with the brand new BlackBerry Curve 8520, as previously reported by quite a few news outlets and blogs. Apparently there was some confusing language on RIM's website that suggested otherwise, but it has been modified to clarify that the software's expected some time in September. Secondly, BlackBerry Desktop Software for Mac is mostly aimed at consumer users and rightly so, as Macs still represent only a small percentage of enterprise PC deployments. That means the software won't have many of the corporate-mail/Outlook/Notes/etc. settings available within the PC-version of BlackBerry Desktop Manager. Specifically, there will be no Entourage/Outlook settings available to tweak or modify. (Think: e-mail signatures, reconciliation settings.) "We've worked very hard to ensure that all the sync features are there," according to Feldman. The real focus in the first release of RIM's new Mac software is really on consumers and their syncing needs, he says. BlackBerry Desktop Software Calendar Sync Screen BlackBerry Desktop Software for Mac will be compatible with Apple PCs running Mac OS Leopard 10.5.5 and higher. And users will need to be running BlackBerry device software version 4.2 or higher to employ it, Feldman says. Last but not least, there's no easy way to load "leaked" software on your BlackBerry device via BlackBerry Desktop Software for Mac, according to Feldman. This is particularly interesting, because BlackBerry users with PCs can currently load just about any sort of compatible BlackBerry Desktop Manager's App Loader component. Feldman wouldn't get into details on how the "blocking" process might work, but he did say there's something in the Mac version meant to dissuade users from loading unofficial software. I'm anxious to get my thumbs on BlackBerry Desktop Software for Mac, and though I wish it offered all the same capabilities of the PC version and more, I understand why RIM decided to leave some components out of the first build. On that note, this is only the first iteration of BlackBerry Desktop Software for Mac, and you can bet more full-featured versions will pop up in the months and years to come. Sign-up » 1/3 BlackBerry Link, formerly called BlackBerry Desktop Manager, or BlackBerry Desktop Software in some regions, is an application used on mobile phones in order to connect seamlessly with BlackBerry 10 smart phones. This application connects users of BlackBerry smart phones via their BlackBerry 10 smartphones to their personal computers, laptops, and tablet computers through the USB cable. BlackBerry Link enables users to browse the web, access a virtual keyboard, manage calendars, contacts, and email accounts from their smartphone, all from the convenience and comfort of their favorite armchair. BlackBerry Link connects the BlackBerry to the computer using the Bluetooth technology, which is enabled by the USB connection. The BlackBerry Link is a browser, like the Internet Explorer or Firefox browser, but more efficient and secure than the latter. The BlackBerry browser can be downloaded for free from the BlackBerry website and works on all major operating systems including Windows XP, Mac, and iPhone. BlackBerry users can also access the Windows desktop version of the BlackBerry browser using the USB cable from their PC. BlackBerry users can switch between using their BlackBerry smartphones and their PCs just by connecting their BlackBerry smartphones to the USB connectors of their PCs. The BlackBerry websites display web content in the form of mini-browsers inside the BlackBerry's browser, and they are available for browsing selected websites such as Facebook, Twitter, Yelp, and Wikipedia. The BlackBerry browser runs on Windows XP, Windows Vista, and Mac OS X operating systems. Once you open the blackberry link software and plug in your BlackBerry smartphones, you will be able to access your favorite websites, view your email account, view your contact information, manage your calendar, search for restaurants, manage your tasks and reminders, and much more. Using the Windows Start Menu on your computer, you can select "start" and then "search." This will launch Microsoft's web browser, which is fully customized to give you the most experience out of the browser you already know and love. Once you launch the browser, you will be able to search through all the websites, navigate through your favorites, and tap into your email account from any Windows 10 PC or MAC desktops that have Bluetooth. We don't have any change log information yet for version 1.2.3.55 of BlackBerry Link. Sometimes publishers take a little while to make this information available, so please check back in a few days to see if it has been updated. Can you help? If you have any changelog info you can share with us, we'd love to hear from you! Head over to our Contact page and let us know.
